Highly competitive colleges may require two of these exams, best taken in the junior and senior years.

Build a strong resume

Carefully select courses, extra-curricular commitments, and leadership positions for the junior and senior years.

Summer between junior and senior years

Develop a summer plan that is interesting and meaningful and enhances your personal narrative.

Research colleges to which you may wish to apply. Begin writing a personal statement for college applications.

Complete and submit applications.

Edit and polish your personal statement and any other required essays. Proofread your application carefully and make a copy before submitting it. Complete the application forms and submit them prior to the deadline.
